Going "Green" with Autophagy as Your Evolutionary Health

Autophagy (or autophagocytosis) (from the Ancient Greek $\alpha\upsilon\tau\phi\alpha\gamma\omicron\varsigma$, aut³phagos, meaning "self-devouring" and $\kappa\omicron\upsilon\tau\omicron\varsigma$, k³tos, meaning "hollow") is the natural, regulated mechanism of the cell that disassembles unnecessary or dysfunctional components. It allows the orderly degradation and recycling of cellular components. Three forms of autophagy are commonly described ...

Autophagy - Wikipedia

Abstract. Autophagy is an intracellular degradation system that delivers cytoplasmic constituents to the lysosome. Despite its simplicity, recent progress has demonstrated that autophagy plays a wide variety of physiological and pathophysiological roles, which are sometimes complex.

Autophagy: process and function - Genes & Development

Autophagy is the major intracellular degradation system by which cytoplasmic materials are delivered to and degraded in the lysosome. However, the purpose of autophagy is not the simple elimination of materials, but instead, autophagy serves as a dynamic recycling system that produces new building blocks and energy for cellular renovation and homeostasis.

Autophagy: Renovation of Cells and Tissues - ScienceDirect

Autophagy is the highly conserved process by which eukaryotic cells scavenge their own cytoplasmic contents through sequestration into a phagophore and subsequent fusion with a lysosome for degradation.

A ravenous defense: canonical and non-canonical autophagy

The ER is a complex, dynamic organelle whose functions include protein folding, Ca²⁺ storage, and lipid and carbohydrate metabolism. Diverse cellular stresses, such as perturbations in Ca²⁺ homeostasis, redox imbalance, altered protein glycosylation, or protein folding defects, cause unfolded or misfolded proteins to accumulate in the ER lumen, a condition known as ERS.

particularly prominent in the adipose tissueâ€”where they organize as a single large droplet (up to 100 Î¼m diameter) that occupies almost the totality of the cytoplasmâ€”all cells contain lipid droplets to variable extents that range from 0.1 to 10 Î¼m.
